"Packaged" Hospital Ready For Glades Emergency Use

The dormant existence of another Glades General Hospital in Belle Glade was the topic of a lecture and discussion presented by District 45 of the Florida Nurses' Association at the hospital, Monday night.

Mrs. Jean Scroggins, head nurse at Glades General, introduced Dr. V. D. Stone of West Palm Beach and Major A. E. Fullerton of the Civil Defense, who explained to the hospital staff and interested public the purposes and possible future need of a 200 bed emergency hospital presently stored in the Belle Glade Armory.

The emergency hospital, referred to as a Packaged Disaster Hospital (PDH), is stocked with 200 beds, a 30 day supply of drugs, linens and other necessary regular hospital supplies, two gasoline generators in case of power failure, an emergency emergency unit, which operates on similar principles to a polaroid camera; surgical tools & virtually everything needed to open and operate a hospital in the community, without outside help for up to one month.

In case of a national emergency such as nuclear attack, or a natural disaster which either destroyed Glades General or injured more persons than could be handled by the one hospital, the PDH is on hand to be set up and receive patients at Glades General.

The PDH can be used either to extend hospital services or operate on its own as an independent unit. The staff would be furnished by Glades General and aided by an "emergency roving team of volunteer doctors" in Palm Beach County.

Dr. Stone, working with other doctors and the civil defense on this project has drawn up plans for the hospital in relation to the layout of Glades Elementary. It shows, in detail which rooms would be most advantageous for the admitting room, operating room, laboratory, ward, central supply, kitchen, etc.

A film entitled "Hospital for Disaster" stressed the necessity of community preparedness and cooperation. The staff, support, non-medical supplies and other necessary personnel must be supplied from within the community itself, especially in the case of communication failures between towns.

The film demonstrated how pre-planning was important in such matters as readiness of ambulances, availability of hospital facilities which cannot be stored in the PDH, and arrangements for laundry and other services which must be considered before disaster strikes.

Among other Packaged Disaster Hospitals which could be reached, Dr. Stone named one presently in West Palm Beach and two more expected to be set up there: one in Cleveland, Fort Pierce, and Stuart; four in Dade County, one in Broward and one in Lee Counties.

"One of our main problems," said Dr. Stone, "in finding adequate storage space. Around 1000 square feet of space is needed to store the PDH and also heating and refrigeration."

City Departments Busy In May

As is the monthly custom, the departments of the City of Belle Glade have turned in their activity reports for May.

Permits for two new homes and two demolitions were issued by the Building Inspection Department. It also lists the issuance of 13 permits for additions and repairs, three for sewer connections, one for moving and for an apartment, and four for signs and electric. This makes a total of 26 permits during May.

The Sewage Treatment Plant reported a flow for the month of 1,027,400 gallons and 248,000 gallons of sludge were fed to the digester. The high and low temperatures for May were 90 degrees and 60 degrees respectively with 10.99" of rain during the month.

Activities such as weeding the plant fence area, planting flowers, cleaning up two buildings, painting the ch-loratorium house and cleaning sludge beds kept the department busy. The sprinkler pump had four cleanings and the infiltration problem received a lot of time and attention. Trash and garbage jobs were approximately 1785 gallons was removed from screens and hoses in plant and lift stations, using five gals. buckets.

Five fires in buildings, the same number for May, 1967, were called to the attention of the Belle Glade Fire Department, two in brush, grass or mulch, and two in vehicles or outdoor equipment, making a total of nine fires reported this month as opposed to 12 at the same time last year. The fire department also answered three rescue or emergency calls. One fire was out before the arrival of the apparatus, one was extinguished by hand extinguishers, and six by other means. The nine controlled fires decreased estimated losses of $2,996.00, a decrease of $2,429 from the 12 fires reported last year.

Kenny Lopez First L. Leaguer To Hit Homer

Kenny Lopez, 12, who last season played catcher for the Consolidated Chemical Team, made history by being the first Little Leaguer to hit a home run. "It was a 200 yard hit" that cleared the fence by more than ten feet," says coach Rusty Hall. Hall, said that Kenny had been just swinging the bat all season long and finally "tapped into one." Coaching with Hall was Jorge Rodriguez, assistant.

Hall tells the boys when a teammate is on first to let the first pitch go by so that the runner can go to second and use the pressure. Occasionally a boy asks what if the first one is where I want it... "then it had better be over the fence."

KENNY LOPEZ

For the team it was a pretty good season too, with six wins and four games rained out. Prior to the All-Star Game, the team had only been beaten against 11 times while racking up 70 runs.

The Consolidated team was finally beaten in a two-hour, twenty-minute game that featured a pitchers duel and featured under three inches of rain... final score 8-3.

Hospital

must be provided for the drugs. In a discussion session following the film, the main questions raised were: "Who would be in charge of mobilization of our disaster hospital?" and "Why don't we have copies of the plan for the hospital?"

Dr. Stone explained that the administrator of Glades General, Ben Clarke, would start "things rolling" after the necessary okay to open the hospital.

The go ahead for setting up the PDH must come from Dr. C. L. Brumback who is the director of the Palm Beach County Health Department and is responsible to the federal government for Palm Beach County's disaster hospital.

The plan, he added, would be furnished to the administrator. If needed, however, he felt the hospital could be set up even without the plan.

It also was hoped that certain equipment furnished by the state may be brought to Belle Glade in the near future for the purpose of training personnel in the use of the unfamiliar emergency equipment and a class arranged for those who would work with the hospital in the west of a disaster.

Major Fullerton passed out booklets to those present on what to do in case of nuclear attack or natural disaster. The booklets explain what can be done within the home if there is no fallout shelter available.

Major Fullerton went on to point out that to date there are no shelters available in this community. The main difficulty, he explained, is the shortage of basements, which are ideal for shelters, in this part of Florida.

A team of engineers and architects have blue prints of the buildings in Belle Glade and are canvassing them for possible emergency shelters. So far, he remarked, the only satisfactory shelter would be the vault at the Bank of Belle Glade.

YOUR MONEY

By Richard A. Poston

If you had become a "member" of a savings and loan association a hundred years ago, it would have been far different from joining one today. You'd have been one of a small group, a few dozen people, probably all near-by friends and neighbors.

There weren't any professional management personnel then. You chose members to handle the details on a part-time basis, generally without pay. Meetings were held in various members' homes, or perhaps in a convenient inn in the town. The whole function of these associations was to enable members to save together... so that each in turn could finance a home from those cooperative savings.

Those first savings and loan associations were small, but they were products of a very big idea... no big idea in title over a century the savings and loan idea has mushroomed to the point where more than one-fourth of all the savings in the United States is in savings and loan associations... saving high dividends with safety and providing the funds to finance more homes than any other single source. (P.S. Have YOU made this big idea part of your savings plan?)

Water Drainage Problem Topic Of Pahokee Council Meeting

Pahokee - About 15 residents from Royal Palm Manor, around by water standing in their front yards or their neighbor's yard, attended the City Council meeting at 7:30 p. m. here Tuesday to request a solution from the Council to end the water problem.

After an hour's discussion it was decided that City Attorney Ralph Johnson would draw up a side-ditch easement in the backyards of those lots most in need of drainage and dig shallow swells that would be channeled to a central catch, and from there be routed underground to a drainage canal nearby.

According to a resident of the manor, there has been a drainage problem in this development for about five years, or since it was built. Apparently, proper drainage was not constructed when the project was built. Every year the residents have tried to get their lots drained during the rainy season, it was stated.

In other action the Council.

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

ASSASSINATION

The tragic death of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in Los Angeles has deeply disturbed the American people and transformed the political situation in an election year.

The shock of the senator's death at the hands of a lone killer has been compounded by the highly emotional and irresponsible comments of some television commentators. Again, as after the death of President John F. Kennedy, there has emerged the illogical theme that all Americans share in the guilt of the killing. President Johnson is to be commended in his initial comment on the shooting, for stressing that America is not sick and that the murder was not committed by 200 million people. No society, no matter how well organized, can completely protect prominent citizens from attacks by determined fanatics in its midst.

What a society can and must do, however, is to maintain general law and order and to stand firm against notions of anarchy and civil disobedience that are a breeding ground for acts of personal violence. The death of Sen. Kennedy is especially tragic in that it might not have occurred, if in his political career, he had applied his energy and ambition to strengthen the importance of law and order. A fair and balanced account of the senator's career must include recognition of his role in encouraging movements of social protest that led to the excesses on the rights of others.

It is also unfortunate that the aide of the senator, in commenting on his role in politics, have not acknowledged that campus and inner-city protest movements are the source of a serious infection in our public life. Indeed it has been reported by THE NEW YORK TIMES that a reputed leader of the Revolutionary Action Movement listed Sen. Kennedy as one of their targets. When the forces of civil disobedience are unleashed in a country, no one can tell in what direction they will strike.

The killing of Robert F. Kennedy is a cruel reminder of the surge of violence in the last year. In a way, it is remarkable that there have not been more assassinations of government officials. For many months, President Johnson and Secretary of State Rusk have been the targets of Vietnam mobs on their appearances in New York City and elsewhere. Massive police manpower has been necessary to protect them.

In Washington recently, members of the Poor People's Campaign gathered in front of the Supreme Court building, throwing rocks at windows. Other members of this protest group shouted threats at the U. S. Attorney General, Newsmen, attempting to visit the camp on the banks of the Potomac, and have been threatened with violence. Columbia University this spring was the scene of shocking student brutality against university administrators. Members of the clergy have invaded draft board offices and destroyed selective service records. Indeed the entire New Left has a commitment to violence to secure its ends. A militant minority of dissenting demonstrators in the United States has sought to overthrow the majority of citizens who give assent to law and order and representative government.

Had Robert F. Kennedy devoted his energies to the cause of sound, conservative government, he could have performed an outstanding work. Instead, he chose to align himself with those who want to "restructure" the United States as the New Left says. Ironically, he was gunned down by a man who had no respect for the law.

It is time for the American people to fully restore the domestic tranquility that our Constitution states as a goal of our national life. It is time to curb the anarchists and to cease the irresponsible comments of television commentators. Again, as after the death of President John F. Kennedy, there has emerged the illogical theme that all Americans share in the guilt of the killing. President Johnson is to be commended in his initial comment on the shooting, for stressing that America is not sick and that the murder was not committed by 200 million people. No society, no matter how well organized, can completely protect prominent citizens from attacks by determined fanatics in its midst.

What had got Ed so riled, Mister Editor, was this ad he had cut out of a magazine. A company had run the ad and called it "No Wonder We're Broke." It had got from the Agency on International Development a listing of all the money we had given other countries from 1945 through 1966. The total was $122 billion, 358 million 520 thousand.

Ed showed me he was pouring money down holes he ain't never heard of, and them countries would rather shoot us than thank us. He read off to the fellows some of them, like Upper Volta, Babon, Lesotho, Burundi and Surinam. The list showed the smallest donation we've made since 1945 was $100,000 to Tonga Island, and it went on from there to $9 billion we have given France. Ed said he ain't never heard of Tonga Island but all France has give us for keeping her up was a hard time. Farther, he said Ed, for all the taxpayers knowed, that $300,000 might have give everybody on Tonga a income for life.

And this piece Ed had showed me was spending $425 million a year and inches relatives from Government agencies, or more than it costs all the wire services, three television networks and the 10 largest newspapers in the country. Ed was of the opinion most of it went in the waste basket and instead of sending all that stuff postage free we had ought to give that $425 million to pay on what the post office loses ever year.

Zeke Grubb final got in a word and said, after hearing Ed's ranting, he was cutting the space program by $200 million. Some of them Congressmen was wanting. He said the way this was going, pretty soon we can live cheaper on Mars or Venus. About the only thing that ain't taxed on earth is the air we breathe. Zeke allowed, and it's getting so polluted the Government was cleaning it up and was going to charge us so we could breathe it.

I told the fellows, Mister Editor, that we was supposed to have Government of, for and by the people, but somewhere along the line the people and the Government had got disconnected and we got the hot line in Washington and a dead circuit over the rest of the country.

This give Ed time to bring out another clipping and he was just getting started to snort when the storekeeper said we would have to adjourn or he was going to lock up the door, go out the window and get himself some sleep.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

Ranting thoughts while listening to the news

It is Smokey the Bear's birthday, but in spite of everything Smokey has been able to do toward stopping forest fires. The record shows we are destroying our valuable forests at a faster rate than at any time in our history.

Try to visualize a strip two miles long and a half mile across our nation from New York to San Francisco as devastated, burned out American forest and you will realize how little most of us respect conservation and the value of our forest resources. Such a strip represents the loss we have experienced from forest fires. Can America stand such a loss and still endure for long?

A chap in Chicago who has not paid income taxes for over 10 years has dared the government to take him to court, claiming that he will refuse to pay his taxes as long as thousands of tax-free groups, co-ops, colleges, churches and foundations operating businesses in direct competition with honest taxpayers and earning huge profits go tax-free. If he is wrong he should be prosecuted and sent to jail. If not we should revise our tax laws.

Hundreds of criminals in the nation's prisons convicted of robbery and arson look at news pictures of looters and arsonists going down in a fire that none seem to be able to prevent.

In the meantime America continues to assume the role of protector of the whole human race and to tell the rest of the world what it should and should not do. Bureaucrats enjoy larger and more generous appropriations to aid the poor and stabilize our national economy while Washington itself is in a worse financial condition today than since 1930 with little hope of improvement unless we tighten our belt, stop spending to try and tell the rest of the world what it should and should not do. London, A Packaged Tour Is Not A Good Way to Enjoy Landmarks

A detachment of the Queen's Guard parading in Ambassador's Court at St. James's Palace.

By Edith Freedlund

A quick packaged tour of London is not a good way to enjoy the historical landmarks.

Our local guide was a middle-aged man with a very keen sense of humor. Some of the things he told us to amuse us were absolutely impossible to believe.

London is comprised of three boroughs, and there are eight million people here. Understand it is larger than Tokyo now.

London proper is only one square mile and at night there are only caretakers and not many, according to our guide. There are 52,000 square miles in England and Scotland combined. This is still smaller than Texas. There are 740 people to the square mile.

Our hotel, the Waldorf, is not far from the heart of London. It is a large stone building of the 18th century. We were told that London was not planned well — so many crooked, narrow streets. Paris has wide boulevards leading nowhere, our guide told us.

Hyde Park is in the heart of London and covers 670 acres. As we drove thru the entrance, there is a dog cemetery where 300 dogs are buried. This was originally a hunting ground.

The American Embassy is a black log and has a large gold eagle on top. The old tramway runs on tracks and had two horses to pull them.

We came to church where Charles Dickens was married. The restoration is the century adjoining have been removed, and now it is used for a playhouse. The restoration is the century adjoining have been removed, and now it is used for a playhouse.

There is a statue of Longfellow with his long hair, and near by the torch of Chaucer. Memorials to John Milton and Alfred Lord Tennyson are here, too. The guide talks continually and it is very difficult to take notes that I can read afterward, so close enough to the guide to hear him and then to make clear copy with the correct spelling.

I feel very inadequate as it has been some many years since I studied any English history.

We walked downstairs to the Pry Chapel, which is small, cold and damp. There were two large wooden chests where the monks kept the valuables. One man stayed here to guard them. The guide told us that once they caught a thief and his skin was tacked on the door — "wenn that terrible!"

We didn't know whether to believe him or not. He also told us that the original of the Order of the Garter was when King Edward III picked up a lady's garter which had fallen on the floor.

As we came back upstairs there was one minute of prayer by the minister and everyone joined in the Lord's Prayer. This does every hour all during the day. This did not seem as large as I had expected.

On TV the rose stained windows at each end did not show the mosaic of the Last Supper. There was a room with a floor so valuable we were not allowed to walk on it.

We passed number ten Downing Street where there is a policeman guarding London seems to be just one square after another. Some have one or more statues and a few have fountains. There is a statue of Abraham Lincoln standing in front of a chair with an eagle stretched eagle carved on the back of the chair.

As we approached Buckingham Palace, we passed a regiment of the Queen's Guards on horseback.

The road is wide with trees on each side thru St. James Park to the palace. The queen mother lives in a white stone building about two blocks from the palace. Nearby is St. James's Palace where foreign ambassadors are housed. There are 40 acres back of the palace & if we see a red helicopter, it would be Prince Philip leaving.

We left the bus at the gates of the palace and watched the changing of the guards. This was indeed a privilege. I have heard about it as of my life. The bright red jackets trimmed silver or gold & the tall black bear skin hats made exceedingly colorful uniforms. Evidently two regiments were changing places as there was a lot of marching and drumming.

Two flag bearers came up to within six feet of the place where we were standing, three different times. There must have been hundreds of tourists here, because when we tried to find our bus, there was a line of buses parked on each side of the street for a block.

Luckily, our guide had given us the number of our bus. The only requirement I learned that the members of the Royal Guard had to have was to be five-foot, eight inches tall and to be a direct for a block.

There are many tall modern buildings in London — these are what the guide refers to as "match-box" buildings. There were 62 acres in the city of London completely destroyed by bombs. The Waterloo Bridge was destroyed.

The seventeen miles of underground railway is longer than the famous tunnel under the Alps. There is an old drug store (chemist shop) on Piccadilly Square that has not been closed in 40 years.

After midnight the junkies line up to get their drugs. You may have a doctor's prescription for this. The lower floor of many of the old residences are being "carved up" for showrooms in the downtown area. Across the square was the dock workers marching with more than a

As we entered St. Paul's Cathedral, the City Church, which is of course Episcopalian, the massive columns impressed me. It is much larger than St. Peter's in Rome.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD, by W. Holman Hunt, a replica of the original in Kable College, Oxford, presented to St. Paul's Cathedral by the late Rt. Hon. Charles Booth. It was painted in 1900 and taken round the world as a sermon in a frame before being dedicated in St. Paul's in 1908.

Is Gun-Control the Answer?

By LEWIS LLEWELYN

The well-meaning attempt to curb killing through gun-control legislation is sure to go to the heart of the problem.

Guns which are held by men with no conscience are not a threat to anyone. People are murdered in their hearts will kill, with or without guns. History proves this.

Have those who advocate gun-control laws pondered the fact that we have had guns ever since man was established — almost 300,000 years ago — but the problem of murder did not reach the present critical stage till recently?

What has changed to make the present situation more serious?

The change has not been primarily in the guns, but in the attitude of man toward justice and in the area of law-enforcement.

The trouble is at the highest level in our government. We have had a president who has ruled that it is unlawful for a child to pray voluntarily. Thanking the Lord for his food, when he is about to eat, is a pious duty. It is unconstitutional to have a teacher read a portion of the Bible each day in the classroom. The same court has ruled that a murderer may not be convicted on the basis of his own confession, unless he had the benefit of legal advice before his confession was given.

Killer Set Free

This ruling has resulted in the freeing of countless murderers. In one case, a woman who had killed a boy was set free by the judge because there were no living witnesses and the only evidence against her was her own confession that she had killed the child.

Prayer

When he thanked the judge, he related, "Don't thank me. Thank the Supreme Court." He reminded her that she was guilty and should be convicted, but he gave her a reprieve because of the Court's ruling.

Thou hastest instruction, and counsel My words builded I said the Lord to a certain group of men.

Could those words be used to describe the majority of the nine justices who determined the way in which justice will be administered in this nation? — We have had a president who has ruled that it is unlawful for a child to pray voluntarily. Thanking the Lord for his food, when he is about to eat, is a pious duty. It is unconstitutional to have a teacher read a portion of the Bible each day in the classroom. The same court has ruled that a murderer may not be con-

Another word from the psalm to which the quoted words appear may be a good suggestion for us today. Here it is: "Call upon Me in the day of trouble, I will deliver thee from all thy distresses."

Would this be a good thing to try — call upon Me in the day of trouble?

Ranting thoughts while listening to the news

It is Smokey the Bear's birthday, but in spite of everything Smokey has been able to do toward stopping forest fires. The record shows we are destroying our valuable forests at a faster rate than at any time in our history.

Try to visualize a strip two miles long and a half mile across our nation from New York to San Francisco as devastated, burned out American forest and you will realize how little most of us respect conservation and the value of our forest resources. Such a strip represents the loss we have experienced from forest fires. Can America stand such a loss and still endure for long?

A chap in Chicago who has not paid income taxes for over 10 years has dared the government to take him to court, claiming that he will refuse to pay his taxes as long as thousands of tax-free groups, co-ops, colleges, churches and foundations operating businesses in direct competition with honest taxpayers and earning huge profits go tax-free. If he is wrong he should be prosecuted and sent to jail. If not we should revise our tax laws.

Hundreds of criminals in the nation's prisons convicted of robbery and arson look at news pictures of looters and arsonists going down in a fire that none seem to be able to prevent.

In the meantime America continues to assume the role of protector of the whole human race and to tell the rest of the world what it should and should not do. Bureaucrats enjoy larger and more generous appropriations to aid the poor and stabilize our national economy while Washington itself is in a worse financial condition today than since 1930 with little hope of improvement unless we tighten our belt, stop spending to try and tell the rest of the world what it should and should not do. Electrically-pumped IRRIGATION is profitable"

There's no denying: proper irrigation can make every acre a bigger profit-maker. It's a routine production practice on thousands of Florida farms and groves where electrically-powered pumps have proved their dependability and economy.

Electric motors give years of carefree service. They start instantly. No refueling is necessary... and no priming. Easily controlled by time-clocks or float-switches. These controls can make irrigation automatic, labor-saving, and conserves water, too.

Moves To Stop Census Invasion Of Privacy

Congressman Paul G. Rogers introduced a bill aimed at prohibiting the Federal government from using the upcoming 1970 census as a means of invading the privacy of American citizens.

"The provision in the Constitution which set out that a census shall be taken each 10 years was designed to count people, not to probe into their private affairs, confessions or embarrassments," Rogers said. "The whole thing is taking on the appearance of Big Brotherism."

Rogers noted that an effort was made last year to establish a national data bank which would have information of a private and personal nature on all citizens, and that he opposed such an idea on the same grounds — that it was an invasion of privacy and smacked of Big Brotherism.

"The plain and simple fact of the matter is that the Census Bureau is attempting to go well beyond its jurisdiction and the intent of the law," Rogers said. "Some of the questions reflect on areas which only the Internal Revenue Service should be concerned with. Others cover areas which private consumer surveys handle. The fact that a person might or might not have a home freezer has no bearing in the intent of the census."

"Questions on how many people share a kitchen or bathroom are irrelevant. Others that ask for information on previous marriages or how many hours you worked last year are quite immaterial," Rogers said.

"Rogers also pointed out that the long-form census runs some 20 pages and that it has been estimated that to answer it completely, one would need a minimum of an eighth grade education."

Rogers also noted that the 1960 census missed an estimated 5.7 million people.

"If we do not act on this legislation and the proposed form is sent out, I predict that we will see a decrease in the paper population count of the nation. People will refuse to answer these questions or return the forms and therefore will not exist on paper," Rogers said.

Because the membership of the Congress is determined by population, the increase in population between census has resulted in bitter court fights which have resulted in redistricting. To help straighten out discrepancies due to inadequate population figures, Rogers supported a bill calling for a mid-decade census. This measure has passed the House and is pending in the Senate.

Rogers' bill would limit the 120 questions now proposed by the census to: 1. name and address; 2. relation to head of household; 3. sex; 4. date of birth; 5. race or color; 6. marital status and 7. visitors in home at the time of the census. Rogers added that he felt a separate group of questions could be included with the 7 items form and could be marked plainly as voluntary. But other than the 7 questions, Rogers sees no reason why citizens should face a possible $100 fine or 60 days in jail for not sending to the Federal government's probing into an individual's private matters.

Council On Aging Sets Up Goals

Officers were elected at the membership meeting of the Palm Beach County Council on Aging, Inc., last Friday according to George C. Young, Secretary, Belle Glade.

The meeting was held at the Okeechobee Road branch of the new and more comprehensive organization.

Elected officers included Wil. Sam J. Cassidy, president, Boca Raton; Charles O. King, West Palm Beach, vice president; Howard E. Campbell, North Palm Beach, treasurer and George C. Young, Belle Glade, secretary.

All of the officers are directors and other directors are Franklin S. Cuyler, Lake Worth; Mrs. Mamie Jo Gillispie, Jupiter; Henry Eilers, South Bay; County Commissioner George V.

Warren, Delray Beach; and Mayor Robert D. Johnson, Lake Worth.

The organization provides for fifteen members with the additional vacancies to be filled over a period with new directors to represent other communities and organizations actively interested in aging problems.

The membership fee for individuals was set at $1.00 per year.

Plans to open a full time office in a central location will be developed by a committee appointed for that purpose.

Other committees appointed were to coordinate the work of local groups with the Florida Commission on Aging which provides professional help to organizations and partially finance acceptable projects up to a period of three years.

Also, to develop a job description and to consider applicants for the position of administrative officers.

The public may obtain additional information from local directors or write to George Young, Secretary, Box 756, Belle Glade, Fla. 33450.

The new organization expects to fully support all existing efforts to meet the needs of the aging and to encourage these organizations to make their experience available to other communities.

The Palm Beach County Council on Aging will set its goals as all, or part of the following:

1. Recognize and eradicate out-moded attitudes about older people.

2. Provide and interpret facts about older people in Palm Beach County.

3. Demonstrate and establish needed programs and services.

4. Work with individuals, groups, organizations and agencies in developing programs and needed services.

5. Assist intelligent citizen action on local, state and national measures by providing channels of information, etc.

6. Increase the efficiency and adequacy of programs and services.

7. Identify and delineate areas in which study and research are needed. The first project is to establish a Senior Citizens Service Center. The immediate need is for public support in the form of good will.

Defects May Develop After Car Inspection

Florida's new motor vehicle inspection program is not an insurance policy against defects developing after cars have been inspected the Florida Highway Patrol said today.

Colonel H. N. Kirkman, Highway Patrol Commander said, "Drivers still have the responsibility of maintaining their vehicles. Motor vehicle inspection helps you do this by warning you of existing trouble you may not have spotted."

Comparing the inspection program to a physician's examination, Kirkman said, "You wouldn't neglect your health just because your doctor gives you a regular physical check ups. The same applies to your car and motor vehicle inspection. They could both mean your life."

It seems that the local housing board and the Department of Housing and Urban Development anticipate getting the Pahokee Housing Project under construction in the near future, inasmuch as they have received bids for same.

We have in our possession, approximately, 800 signatures of people who live in the old projects stating that they do not plan on living in the type of housing as they have programmed, which will cost $2 million dollars to the taxpayers, and, too, this new location is undesirable due to the fact it is such low land, and will have to be filled in to prevent being under water at times. The citizens who live in the old projects are only interested in a housing project.
